Correction

Published on Apr 29, 2010

Information in the April 15 and 22 issues of the Flamborough Review about the appeal process for the government's zoning freeze on the Flamborough Quarry lands in northeast Flamborough was incorrect.

There is a 30-day window from the time of the Ministerial Zoning Order (MZO) announcement until the Minister gives notice of his decision through the Ontario Gazette. Any person can request Minister Jim Bradley either revoke or amend the MZO at any time and, without waiting for the Minister's decision, can request that he refer the application to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). The province then has 30 days to declare a provincial interest with the final adjudication to be made by the Ontario Cabinet.

The Review regrets the error.
